

HydroFlowCanada

The Canadians are not left out in the cold anymore. Due to the fact that the Hydropath Technology was invented in the UK, the most practical market was Europe and the East, which is now familiar with the quality of the Hydropath products - and is even becoming a household name in some areas.

Now Shaun Jackson together with Jason Schiavello and their staff are bringing this technology to the Canadian market with HydroflowCanada.

They are proud to be associated with a technology which is second to none and they look forward to giving back to the environment by reducing the incredible amount of salt water softeners.

In Canada the Great lakes are one of the most precious assets and we know that through HydroflowCanada we can make a difference.

HydroFlowCanada Green Initiative

HydroFlowCanada will be taking an initiative by allotting a donation for every product sold and we will be saving these proceeds to go towards saving the lakes or other ecosound charities of our choice.

This would promote the product in a very positive way and Hydroflow/Hydropath would earn it's long overdue status, as being a product that goes hand in hand with a future that people want.

That means we are able to offer double protection firstly with the protection through the product and secondly through generating a allotted revenue that can assist ecosound projects.

This generates for us a company that has solid ethics, that eventually becomes a household name.

And finally gives separation from all the pipe dream products that are marketed around the world.

Imagine if all the distributors around the world would follow this initiative - for which I'm sure they would have no objections as the long term benefits are all positive.
